

New Views of the Germany of
To-day

This remarkable picture shows a section of the gallery in the National Assembly at Weimar. It will be seen that every class in German life is represented.

Photo by International Film.

President Ebert and his Cabinet. From left to right—Otto Landsberg, Minister of Justice; Chancellor Philip Scheidemann; Gustav Noske, Minister of Defence; Herr Ebert; Herr Wissel, Minister of Commerce. Herr Noske is coming to be known as the "Strong Man of Berlin."

Photo by International Film.

The American "Watch on the Rhine" is a familiar phrase now. This is one of the American motor launches, manned by our doughboys, that are patrolling the great waterway to preserve order and inspire respect.

Copyright, International Film.

A "League for Combating Bolshevism" is in operation in Germany. This poster was widely circulated throughout the country during the campaign.

Photo by Paul Thompson.

A new picture of Frau Frederick Ebert, wife of the President of the German Republic who receives a salary of $250,000 a year.

Photo International Film.

BOLSCHEWISMUS

Vereinigung zur Bekämpfung des Bolschewismus
BERLIN W.9. Schellinstraße 2.

Another anti-Bolshevist poster. It warns the people of Germany that Red doctrines bring war, unemployment and hunger in their train.

Photo by Paul Thompson.